

CONFIDENTIAL

AND AMY NOONAN

“It is such a bizarre shock for them to see daddy being mean.

– Will Smith on his kids’ reaction to his latest film role of drinking, swearing, superhero-gone-bad Hancock.

Local boy takes best actor gong

WHEN the St Kilda Film Festival National Tour comes to town next week, there will be a familiar face in the mix, namely ex-Adelaide lad Damon Herriman.

Three time Logie nominated Damon is an esteemed part of the festival, having scooped its best actor accolade for his role in Len’s Love Story.

A showcase of quality Australian short films, the St Kilda film festival will be touring the state, starting in Mt Gambier on Tuesday, touching down in Adelaide on Wednesday and rounding out the week in various other regional venues.

But if you miss making it along to see Damon in action, pencil July 16 into your diaries and see him play a very convincing baddie in an ep of Channel 9 crime drama Cold Case.

Scoring the international gig was quite a coup for SA-born Damon and, if his performance is anything to go by, it may not be the last time we see him cropping up on the box.

It’s raining men? Nope. It’s a drought

CALLING all hotties – the fashion industry needs you. We’re in the midst of a male model shortage, according to Christabel Buder, left, the creative director of Pride Models. “It’s not that we don’t have enough good looking men in Adelaide – we do – but they think modelling doesn’t fit in with the culture of the Aussie bloke,” Christabel says. “It’s certainly the case with my agency that I have a shortage of male models . . . I’m on the hunt.” Christabel’s even putting the call out to about 100 amateur league football clubs, looking for untapped talent.

While skinny, androgenous boys might be the rage in Milan, most body types get a gurnsey in Adelaide.

“They need to be 6 foot (183cm), fit and healthy, have good skin and good nutrition,” she says.

“They don’t need to be buff and muscly, but it helps if they are fit.”

Christabel’s emphatic when she says modelling’s anything but sissy. “All it can do is increase your confidence because you’re working in lots of different situations – you could be doing anything from being body painted to photographic shoots, fashion shows – it’s a fantastic opportunity.”

Who’s this Guy?

WHILE there’s no doubt Guy Sebastian’s new wife Jules Egan has his heart, fans of the former ‘Fro can get his heart too – with his new clothing range.

Adelaide’s Christian crooner has released a range of “I Love” clothing, to coincide with World Youth Day and for after the event.

Up to 225,000 Catholic pilgrims are expected in Sydney next week for the five-day event, which will feature a visit by Pope Benedict.

Fans of Guy will be decked out in his “I Love” cap, shirts and hoodie jumpers – think of the “I Love NY” T-shirts, without the NY, and the design also features his iconic smiley face signature.

“It’s just great to be involved in an event where so many young people come together with the same thing in mind – to unite and spread the message of love,” Guy says in a statement. While an unspecified percentage of sales will be contributed to the World Youth Day organisation, Guy will also prosper from mass merchandising, with his management company set to pocket some of the proceeds.

Here’s hoping the big guy upstairs doesn’t have a problem with Catholic commercialism, or worship of Australian Idols.

Neighbours recruit Margot Robbie tells of thin pressure.

Bob helps build Singer’s memorial stolen

MOST days, Maitland man Trevor Davey is best known as a farmer from the Yorke Peninsula. But for eight days in August, Trevor takes on an entirely new persona – Bob the Builder.

It’s all part of the fundraising – and fun – on the Variety Bash.

“Some people go for the whole week as Kiss, in all the make-up, or Shrek with all that green face paint, in the heat and dust. That takes some dedication,” Trevor says.

“I just put on some overalls, a toolbelt and a hard hat and I’m Bob, and the kids love it.”

Trevor’s something of a Bash veteran, racking up 11 drives through country SA.

“I first got involved because I was a bit of a petrol head and the motoring side appealed to me, but once I got on the Bash it became all about the children.”

Adelaide Confidential is entering a car in this year’s Variety Bash. To help with fundraising, please send your cheques or money orders made out to Variety SA to Adelaide Confidential Variety Bash, GPO Box 2111, Adelaide, SA 5001.

JOY Division? More like joy subtraction for fans of the influential post-punk band.

Thieves have made off with the memorial stone of the band’s late frontman, Ian Curtis.

Bearing the epitaph “Love Will Tear Us Apart” – the title of the band’s most famous song – the stone was taken from the Macclesfield Crematorium in northern England.

Curtis committed suicide in 1980, aged 23, before the band was due to leave on a tour the U.S.

Local officials have appealed for the return of the stone.
